This forum will provide a post-election perspective on some of the challenges and opportunities that natural resources, public lands, and energy policymakers in Washington are likely to face in the next four years. An expert panel will discuss the dynamics in the Department of the Interior, the Department of Agriculture, and Congress, and how their evolving policies are likely to affect Colorado in the coming years.

Moderated by Dean Phil Weiser

Panelists:

- Jay Jensen, Associate Director for Land & Water Ecosystems, White House Council on Environmental Quality
- Scott Miller, Visiting Assistant Professor, Colorado Law; former Senior Counsel, Senate Committee on Energy and Natural Resources (2003-2012).
